Senator Blaine's Brother Removed

New York, Sept 27—A Washington special says Robert G Blaine Senator Blaine's brother who has been assistant keeper of the senate document room for several years was removed by Sergeant-at-Arms Bright to day Blaine had been given leave of absence until October 10th and he was dismissed without previous notification of any kind No complaint was made against the man ner in which he performed his duties, and his removal was undoubtedly made to make a place for some democratic office-seeker

More Talk about the Chinese.

New York, Sept. 30—A correspondent writes to the Times objecting to some of the comments made by that paper on the Oregon Chinese case In the first place, California's definition of pioneers comprehends chiefly the class of gold seekers who arrived on the coast during the few years subsequent to the year 1849—hence the term of forty niners as common there and secondly the few survivors of that class who emigrated to the coast before 1849 or served in the army and navy on those shores during the Mexican war will I think testify the among the first to reach California in the grand scramble of 1848 and 1849 no more useful orderly, and, for a time more popular than our Chinese Johns. They established our first laundries and cheap eating houses supplied our wives with their first household servants and formed a really desirable and deserving little community The prejudice—against them is of later date than the days of 49 and though there is an honest and well grounded conviction among the true pioneers of the Pacific states that Chinese immigration should be carefully regulated, and the habits and customs of this people among us be controlled and modified by wise laws I think I speak the sentiment of a majority of the oldest Californians when I say they do not share the vulgar inhumane and unAmerican feeling so common in California to-day and known among our newspapers as 'Chinaphobia.

Some Recent Utterances of Tilden.

New York Sept. 29—The Tribune's Washington correspondent gives the following as the recent utterances of Tilden The southern democracy has handicapped the northern wing of the party to an alarming extent during the last two years The attitude of the southern democrats upon financial questions, their many blunders in congress, their repudiation of their state debts their intolerance and outrageous treatment of those who differ from them in politics and lastly the many unpunished and condoned political assassinations Tilden thinks are illy calculated to make the democratic nomination very desirable except to a candidate who might be content to run simply for the honor of leading the party in the race Tilden is represented, however as being satisfied that he can obtain the nomination if he wants it

The Southerners Indignant.

New York Sept 30—A Tribune Washington special says The declaration of Tilden in regard to the effect of southern barbarism and the indiscretions of southern politicians at the extra session has created a general stir among all classes of democrats here especially those from the south It is accepted as a true representation of what Tilden has recently said By southern men it is mainly regarded as a bid for northern conservative support which Tilden may think is being driven away from the democratic party by late events at the south and by the work of the extra session They compare it to his letter on southern claims as being exclusively for northern edification The more conservative democrats have treated it as a startling notice to the democrats of the south from the man so situated as to give it the most emphasis that unless they stop their brutality and abandon the barbarisms which are rapidly arousing the spirit of the north they will so unite the north as to insure an overwhelming defeat at the next national election Southern men are indignant and they say that Tilden takes a cowardly advantage of them because he knows that southern democrats will vote for any candidate of the party whether he is the true choice of the convention or not

We expect very large additions to the fair in the ... respects to day and to morrow After that we shall make ... specific ... which we may have to say of them meanwhile giving only at present what is generally true of all State Fairs

HORSES.

A stroll about that part of the grounds occupied by the horse stables to day discloses the fact that the number of farm horses recorded ... horses of all work is much smaller than formerly and owing to the incompleteness of the preparations going on all over the grounds and the lack of cattle ... the stalls a number of the horses could not be seen or the requisite information to enable one to write intelligently about them obtained Among those present there are some as fine specimens of that noble animal as have ever been on these grounds. A J Fairbanks has two imported Norman stallions which have been in Oregon about a year ... Tegan is a dapple gray ... years old and weighs about 1900 lbs He is handsomely built showing the fine points in this magnificent family of horses Welcome same strain color and age is hardly so heavy and is possessed of fine limbs splendid action and life

Thos. J Edmondson of Marion county has a Norman stallion Wide Awake 6 years old imported from France in 1878 and a fine animal He is also the owner of Louis Napoleon a half blood Norman 18 years old but active as a colt This mare Laura with a sucking colt by the old horse completes his display of horses at present though he expects to add others before the Fair closes

Grierson & Pugh of Marion county display several fine Clydesdales among which Rob Roy a bay stallion 6 years old imported in 18.8 a heavy horse but showing fine action and life Jess a 4 year old mare weighing 1560 pounds also imported last year from Scotland Merry Mason a 4 year stallion and is as fine a thoroughbred Clyde as there is in the state.

J A Sawyer of Polk county exhibits Belmont Jake, a Clydesdale and Belmont stallion 7 years old, Ontario Champion 3 years old full blood Clydesdale, and a pair of ... olds, Johnny Lee ... Gilton ... Roya. George out of ... Upperbottom ... and Billy Reed, by Autocrat, out of an Emigrant mare.

Wm. Townsend of Marion county, shows a Percheron, yearling Brigham Young, by White Prince and Henry Ward Beecher a yearling, by Gen Fleury, and a sucking colt out of a Leviathan and George mare, by Louis Napoleon He is ap... ently experimenting in raising farm horses and roadsters and has reason to be proud of the colts which he has on exhibition

There are a great many other horses on the grounds besides the race stock but our mention of them must be deferred

The New Pavilion

This valuable addition to last year's buildings has been and will be during the fair the center of attraction especially for the ladies The rains during the fair of the past two years have caused some Portland exhibitors to ... shy of this year However a number arrived on last night's train and will put their exhibits in order to day One feature of the new pavilion worthy of particular commendation is the complete order which characterizes the arrangements of all articles A wide aisle runs through the center of the building north and south and narrow aisles on either side, and across the room at intervals of fifteen feet No advantage is given one exhibitor over another and all who have their goods arranged seem to be satisfied

In the exact center of the pavilion is a large fountain Above the fountain hang a number of handsome rustic baskets filled with all manner of evergreens and blooming flowers One basket hangs directly over the jets from the fountain and receives its sprays For fifty feet to the right and left of the main aisle and north and south of the fountain are arranged pyramidal shelves of flowers which to fully describe would take a column of the Oregonian Viewed from an artistic point the flower display is the finest department of the Fair

Wm Pfunder & Co have a well arranged stand at the left of the main entrance in the center of which is a large pyramid of the Oregon blood purifier They also have a show case filled with fine toilet articles The exhibit is under the charge of Harry McCormick Esq

Hodge Davis & Co come next in order with a display of Oregon kidney tea and cough balsam Their sign encircling an oil painting is immense

Geo H Beach has a display of Wm Scheffler's sanitary brandy and wines of various kinds from St Helena. Napa county California

The Oregon Bible Society has on exhibition about fifty styles of Bibles and Testaments in the English German French, Greek Latin Hebrew Swedish Danish and five Indian languages under charge of Rev F C Hetzler

O B Johnson has a fine collection of beetles stuffed birds and shells

Several Salem firms have fancy goods millinery toys and not one on exhibition

Wm Beck & Son and D W Prentice & Co of Portland, are each opening a large exhibit this afternoon.

There are a few displays of vegetables wheat Oregon hard woods cheese, crockery and sewer pipe.

The Capital Leather and Manufacturing Co have a very creditable exhibit of Oregon tanned leather horse collars harness saddles and saddle trees

In ladies handiwork there have been a few entries. There seems to be a disposition on the part of those who really have fine specimens to wait until all the other articles are placed on exhibition before showing their own The result is that the space allotted to that department is nearly vacant.

FRANK G ABELL'S DISPLAY

Frank G Abell the well known photographer has a magnificent display of works of art from his gallery, The collection embraces everything from card photos to oil paintings, and is much admired both for the excellence and variety of the display and for the tastefulness of arrangement. The exhibit occupies the entire northeast corner of the pavilion and was arranged by Mr C P Yates of the firm of Robbins & Yates who deserves much praise for the fine taste shown The bino graphs the last novelty in the art attract much attention as do also two life size portraits one a fine photograph the other in India ink and crayon Another pleasing novelty is the large display of panel photographs longer and narrower than cabinets and quite as popular. Mr Abell's space has already received and deserves the appellation of the handsome corner

None Genuine without a Facsimile of this Stamp on Each Boot.

BUCKINGHAM & HECHT THE COUNTER ... PROTECTOR TRADE MARK PATENTED MAY 21 1878

In this boot the counter is covered by a piece of leather extending from under the sole to some three inches above the upper edge of the counter or in other words, the counter is between the leather of the boot and the protector and is not exposed either on the outside or the inside of the boot consequently the heel does not touch it at all thus one of the greatest objections to boots—the trouble of getting the heel over the counter or stiffening—is removed This is an object of great importance to the consumer both in economy and comfort On this point we need only appeal to the thousands who wear boots

HERCULES

HERCULES

Another advantage gained by this arrangement is that the same piece of leather that covers and protects the counter also extends beyond the side seams covering those seams thereby greatly increasing their strength Again in the old style boot the leg is liable to sag or fall around the ankle but in

HERCULES.

The Hercules Boot this is rendered less liable by the counter protector as it doubles the leather at the point where the sagging usually takes place

All boots—men s boys' and youths—may be manufactured with this improvement, though it is most desirable in heavy boots where great strength is required

SATURDAY MORNING, OCT. 4, 1879.

OUR INTEREST IN FREE SHIPS.

The New York Journal of Commerce believes that the fog which envelops the subject of free ships is being dispelled. It gives notice to all concerned that "the issue of free ships will be raised at the next session of congress in a way that will command attention." To this the Philadelphia Record adds that the navigation laws of this country were instituted for protection of seamen, and are now kept up for the assumed protection of shipbuilders;—yet their continued existence is a ridiculous feature in the economical policy of a country which is now boasting of its growing export trade and of the consternation it is creating among rival nations as the prospective arbiter of the world's commerce, and yet does not carry twenty per cent of its own. Here is a young and all-powerful nation, one of whose greatest immediate needs is to find means to revive its ocean-going shipping. It is admitted that foreign-built ships can be had at advantageous prices. But it is claimed that this would injure the home builders, and through them the workingman. Yet it is manifest that the home builders are doing little now, and that the laws which forbid the purchase of foreign built ships are rapidly driving the last remnants of our foreign carrying trade into foreign hands. To provide work for domestic shipyards the country must first come to employ ships extensively in building up its foreign commerce. So, then, the most direct method of laying the foundation of American shipbuilding is to [illegible] the sailing of ships under the American flag by purchasing them abroad. The opposition to repeal of our registration laws, fit only for medieval times, springs from a narrow selfishness which defeats its own [illegible]. The triumph of common sense over [illegible] and folly in respect to the desired free ships can hardly be expected save [illegible] a general revision of the [illegible] tariff in the interest of foreign [illegible] and domestic prosperity. This cannot come until the people are better informed concerning the crying need of a reform. Against the movement is arrayed the [illegible] opposition of such manufacturers [illegible] monopolies by virtue of the present tariff. These men are opposed to any change, for the reason that they fear [illegible] disaster will be visited on themselves as an inevitable result of intelligent consideration of the subject. To overcome this [illegible] earnest work will be required on the part of those who have only an indirect interest in the triumph of sound principles. Our ocean carrying trade here is nearly all done by foreign ships—mostly British. All the profits that accrue from the transport of our produce to market go to the foreigner. [illegible] be secured to our people if the [illegible] allow American citizens to buy [illegible] those who can build them cheaply, [illegible] as we are on the sea coast, and having our only market across the seas, this is [illegible] of great importance to our future, [illegible] Oregon will add her voice in concert to that of those who, as the New York [illegible] journal before cited, says, will [illegible] the issue of free ships and put it [illegible] that will command attention.

[illegible] on our shipping interests the [illegible] how that, in proportion to the [illegible] done by Oregon and California, so few vessels are owned among us. [illegible] San Francisco and Astoria are [illegible] during the year by a large number of [illegible] vessels, but hardly any of them are [illegible]. They are almost exclusively [illegible] vessels, or vessels owned in the Atlantic states. Only steamboats, and small [illegible] engaged in the coasting and inland [illegible] are owned or controlled by our citizens. To support towns of the magnitude, wealth and commercial business of San Francisco and Astoria, this is little short of a reproach. There is certainly much capital in [illegible] which could well be employed [illegible] and thus be of benefit to the community at large." We suppose the Astorian would not object to including Portland with Astoria and San Francisco as [illegible] which might furnish capital for shipping [illegible]. But for this argument let Astoria [illegible] Oregon. The industrious journal published there says that every place [illegible] of commerce has [illegible] a ship-owning community, which is a [illegible] and it proceeds to give its [illegible] in the present case, saying: "Capitalists on the Pacific coast are too [illegible] of delay in business transactions. It is not the matter of risk that deters them from ocean commerce, for they incur greater risks every day; but delay is something to which they have not yet become accustomed. They must have speedy returns, or something in the line of [illegible] from which speedy returns are possible, whether probable or not." We are inclined to allow some force to this [illegible], but do not think it meets any part of the main difficulty. Let our laws be amended so that our citizens may buy ships where they can buy them cheapest, and it will then be seen how quickly we shall become a ship-owning community and how [illegible] our capitalists will engage in making money in the ocean carrying trade.

The Astorian speaks of vessels owned in the Atlantic States as visiting our ports; but [illegible] how small the proportion of such vessels is to those which come here for business under foreign flags. If we have made no mistake in running over the list, our wheat fleet of 1878-9 had fifty-[illegible] foreign vessels to twelve American, while an equal or perhaps greater proportion are foreign. The fact is we can't build ships in the United States under existing laws and other conditions so as to make the business profitable, and our lawmakers, possessed with the idiocy of "protection," refuse to let us buy them. So we can neither build nor buy, and upon the foreigner is bestowed nearly the whole profits of our carrying trade. This is the reason why Astoria and Portland see so few American ships. We have here, in a nutshell an explanation of the fact that our capitalists do not engage in the ocean trade. The ship building industry in the United States has been "protected" to death, and government stands at the door to forbid the purchase by our citizens of foreign built ships. Even in our Atlantic States, where labor generally is cheaper than here, it is useless to try to build ships which can carry at as low rates as English built vessels. Now, since other countries can build ships so much cheaper than we can, why shouldn't we buy them and enter into competition with those countries for the profits on our own carrying trade, at least? Only one further act is wanting to complete the folly to which our policy on this subject would carry us; and we should undoubtedly rush to that [illegible] act were it not expressly forbidden by the constitution of the United States. Under [illegible] for securing further "protection" to American industry we should lay an export tax on all articles shipped in foreign vessels, were it not for a clause in section nine of the first article of the constitution.

The disadvantage under which we labor in regard to our shipping interests is part of the result of that most fallacious and destructive policy of "protection," so-called, which must be cut up by the roots before we shall be able to start upon a career of true commercial and industrial prosperity. Hampered as we are now, and with so many obstacles set by law in the way of the employment of capital and energy in the [illegible] which they would naturally seek, but which must be left absolutely open if success would be attained, it is no wonder that no shipping is owned among us, that rails cannot be had for our railroads except at two prices, that little profit is left for our labor after it has been taxed for support of a vicious system, and that on the whole our development is so slow. Such progress as is made is gained in spite of obstacles which such system has created and maintains.

CURIOUS INFORMATION.

If you want information about party movements attend to what the two parties say about each other. Concerning Tilden and his methods and purposes, as well as concerning democratic movements in general, no end of information is furnished by republican journals; while from democratic sources we have news in relation to the republican party and its management which shows how deep an interest these brethren in their turn, with neighborly emulation take in the affairs of their political adversaries. We are told now on the one hand that Tilden thinks the southern democrats have acted very badly, so badly indeed that he is not sure a nomination for the presidency next year will be more than an empty honor to the democratic candidate who secures it. And on the other hand we have assurances, repeated with great circumstantiality and fullness of detail, that Blaine and Sherman some time ago formed a mutual alliance for the destruction of General Grant as a presidential candidate, but that Sherman has now abandoned all hope in his own behalf, and will earnestly support Blaine. It is alleged that Sherman sees in the nomination of Cornell by the republicans of New York a conclusive indication that under no circumstances can he have the vote of New York in a national convention. Conkling's triumph, and the hold he has upon his party, it is asserted, "snuffs out" Sherman as a presidential candidate; and now Sherman will loyally keep his compact with Blaine and devote himself to dampening the Grant enthusiasm in Blaine's behalf. By saving Maine, Blaine has obtained great prestige to start with, and to the western states which have hitherto been royal to him, Ohio, heretofore not friendly, is to be added, while Sherman is to take the senatorship in case his party wins the legislature. The ingenuity with which stories like these are worked up on both sides is sometimes remarkable. It is rare indeed that president making has ever been going on so earnestly a full year in advance of the event.

The United States consul at Honolulu reports that the so-called reciprocity treaty has proved "a bonanza to these islands, especially to the sugar planters and rice growers." He adds that the land, provision and labor markets are entirely reconstructed; sugar and rice lands are doubled in value, and the average advance in real estate in three years is 35 per cent. But there is a dark side to this pleasant picture, with which, unfortunately, the United States is more intimately associated. It is that our national treasury loses a million dollars annually by the operations of the treaty. This loss to our government was predicted at the time of the ratification of the treaty, and the more attention is called to the subject the more pressing becomes the necessity of classing it among those evils laconically termed jobs—put up jobs, if you please.

Ex-Postmaster General Jewell recently said "Connecticut is for Grant all over." The New York Tribune, which does not favor the "Grant boom," retorts thus: "If this was the state of mind in Connecticut a few days ago, what must it be now since Grant has had a baby passed to him over the heads of the crowd in California, and kissed the infant amid the tumultuous cheers of surrounding thousands?"

The Boston Herald, an independent anti-Butler paper, endeavors to show that fears of Butler's election are unfounded. Last year, of the 344 cities and towns, in only half a dozen was there a decrease of the republican vote over the previous year, and in the whole state the republican gain was 43,740 votes. Butler has disorganized nothing but the democratic party.

The Helena Herald complains that nearly one-half of Montana is covered by Indian reservations—one on the north extending through ten degrees of longitude, including also the greater portion of eastern Montana, and says that the six New England states could be amply provided with room in these enormous reservations.

NOMINATION FOR CHIEF ENGINEER.

W. H. ANDRUS, OF NO. 1.

HALL OF WILLAMETTE ENGINE CO. NO. 1,
PORTLAND, OGN., Oct. 3, 1879.

AT A REGULAR MEETING OF WILLAMETTE Engine Company No. 1, held at their hall on Thursday evening, Oct. 2, 1879, the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, Sound judgment and deliberate conduct in the active discharge of his duties are the pre-eminent requisites of ability in the head officer of a live and efficient fire department; and

WHEREAS, A fireman of many years' active service, possessing such marks of ability, who has served for nearly four years as chairman of the committee of the common council having control of matters relating to the needs and efficiency of the Portland Fire Department, is well worthy of the confidence and support of all firemen as a man who would ably and faithfully discharge the duties of chief engineer and successfully lead and direct the department in times of activity and critical service: therefore

Resolved, That Willamette Engine Co. No. 1 esteems Mr. W. H. Andrus to possess such worthy requisites of ability, and we, the members of said company, pledging him our hearty and united support, hereby nominate him for the office of Chief Engineer of the Portland Fire Department, and respectfully present his name to the consideration of voters at the regular election on December 1, 1879.

CITY.

JUSTICE TO DETECTIVE HUDSON.—Inasmuch as certain incorrect statements have been made regarding the connection of Detective Hudson with the arrest of James A. King, Bernard and Fairchild, it is but a matter of simple justice to that officer to state the facts in the case: Detective Hudson arrested James A. King in Oregon City and brought him in person to Portland. From information from King Detective Hudson telegraphed to Marshal Thorndyke of Seattle for the arrest of Bernard and Fairchild, who were known by Hudson to be over on the Sound, referring him to George Laroque of Oregon City, who was then at Seattle, for a personal description of the two men. Bernard and Fairchild were arrested by Thorndyke and held in custody until Hudson obtained the necessary papers from the governor of this state. He then went over to Olympia and brought the two prisoners to this city. The assertion that King was brought to Portland and liberated, and that he returned to Oregon City, where he was subsequently rearrested, is not true. He was arrested by Hudson and held in custody until he was turned over to Sheriff [illegible] of Clackamas county. Great credit is due Detective Hudson for the energy and skill displayed in ferreting out the case and in bringing to justice these parties. The above are the simple facts in the case.

THE MATTER OF ORNAMENTAL TREES.—A [illegible] test of fifteen years has demonstrated that the ordinary maple is not, in the climate of Portland, a tree of permanent [illegible] and not adapted for the purposes of ornament and shade in this city. It now becomes necessary to select a variety of tree which is hardy, of sufficiently rapid growth to [illegible] in time that "those who plant may [illegible] of dense foliage to afford shade, and of [illegible] and handsome form. The matter [illegible] important one, worthy of attention from [illegible] council. A great many of the maple [illegible] are dead or in a dying condition from [illegible]—probably from the character of [illegible]. MURDER IN THE SECOND DEGREE.

King, on trial during the week at Oregon City, for the murder of Mrs. Hagar, has been found guilty of murder in the second degree. The chief testimony against him was based on his own confessions, made to different persons, though these were supported by a great variety of circumstances. We take from the Enterprise the following statement of Mrs. Wrigley's testimony, which is more full and precise than that heretofore published, and is the most direct testimony given:

In December, 1877, she heard Bernard and Fairchild trying to induce her son to rob Hagar's house; spoke to King and Bernard about it before they went to the penitentiary; Bernard said there was $5 000 in Hagar's house, and he would get it inside of five years if he had to take life for it, and King said it was easier to make a living in that way; says she spoke to several persons at the time about getting her son away from the temptation of these men. King told her that Bernard did the killing, also wrote something on a paper, and on the back of it a drawing of the collar worn by Bernard, gave her the paper, with the request to see the collar found, and tell him if it was the same. Witness swore that the collar produced was the one worn by King the first day he came to town, and that King afterward told her that he had given it to Bernard. Witness further deposed that King told her that Bernard had killed Mrs. Hagar with a hatchet; that they (King and Bernard) had met Fairchild between the Abernethy plane and Clackamas, and had gone on toward Portland, with the intention of robbing the White House; that King boarded at her house soon after the murder for nearly a month, and spoke of the murder nearly every day to her; mentioned the fact of overhearing the conspiracy to her son-in-law, father brother and husband. Witness stated that King had told her that sometime he would give her a nice gold chain, as she had been a mother to him.

Bernard and Fairchild will not be tried until December, when a special term has been called.

District Attorney J. F. Caples, and his deputy, M. F. Mulkey, deserve much credit for the energy and ability displayed in working up the testimony in the case, and in securing the conviction of King.

A BEAUTIFUL PARLOR GRAND PIANO.

We were shown at the warerooms of Mr. Albert Bartsch, on Third street, a splendid Parlor Grand Steinway, the smallest style of Grand piano ever made. The instrument has a new overstrung improved duplex scale by which the tone is given a longer, more sonorous quality and a greater carrying capacity. It has an extra Capo D'Astro bar and patent tone-sustaining pedal. This pedal prolongs a note, or group of notes, at the will of the player, and thus allows the hands of the performer to be used on another part of the key board. The frame is cast of a composite metal resembling bell metal, instead of iron, and helps to produce clearer, more resonant tones. This fine instrument has been purchased by W. S Ladd, Esq., of this city.

Money orders repaid		209 60
Total		$274,541 57

Some idea may be formed of the rapid increase of the money order business at the postoffice in this city by the following statement of the business transacted at the Portland postoffice during the year 1872:

3927 money orders, amounting to	$102,004 91
Amount received for fees	946 05
95 British orders issued and fees on same	2,555 17
14 Swiss orders issued and fees on same	511 02
33 German orders issued and fees on same since Oct. 1, '72 (three months)	750 12

Amount furnished other postmasters	16,253 00
Amount paid in vouchers (expense)	500 68
	$333,075 63

From the above figures it will be observed that six years ago the total amount issued was about $25,000 per quarter and the total amount paid about $20,000. Now the amount issued is nearly doubled and the amount paid about five times as great. More is paid out now in one quarter than was then for the entire year.

WM. SCHEFFLER'S ST. HELENA

SANITARY, VACUUM DISTILLED GRAPE BRANDY AND GOOD OLD EDGE HILL WINES.

Mr Scheffler is sole proprietor of the principle known as the vacuum process of distilling, by which the fusil oils are left with the residue and not incorporated with the brandy, leaving it pure and free from all deleterious substances which does and must exist in all alcoholic liquors distilled by the usual process of boiling heat. California Physicians have pronounced their preference of it to all other. Doctor Cox, government revenue officer at Cincinnati, Ohio, says in his report, that after ten years' of close investigation he can safely say that very few, if any, pure wines or brandy are exported from the Old Continent to this. He has found none in his many analyses—that all are doctored before leaving France. The French Consul at Buenos Ayres writes home to his government that so much complaint is made there of the appearance of litharge and other dangerous drugs in all their French wines that there is great danger of losing the trade of the Argentine States. Other proofs could be cited were it necessary, to prove the superiority of the best class of California wines and brandy. Orders from responsible parties, addressed to Wm. Scheffler, or Geo. H. Beach, St. Helena, Napa county, Cal., will receive prompt attention.

BLACK SILK TEST.

PORTLAND, Oct. 2, 1879.

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

Here is a bit of information that will both interest and instruct thousands of your intelligent readers. During a recent visit to the city of New York, I visited a friend of mine who is interested in the sale of black silk and other dress goods, etc., in both retail and wholesale.

During the course of our conversation he showed me a simple mode of testing black or colored silk material that so pleased me that I believe many of your readers would gladly learn such knowledge with many thanks to THE OREGONIAN.

The test is as follows: Cut a piece of silk the length of your finger and burn it in a blaze of fire of any kind. If the silk while in the fire, burns like burning a feather, it is pure and all silk. If the silk while in the blaze of fire does not burn like the feather but simmers, and after removing it from the blaze it continues to burn like Chinese punk, the material is adulterated, is heavily adulterated and is not worth a dressmaker's bill. Pure silk when burned in this way dies out the moment it is taken from the blaze, and the fire crisps it into black charcoal. Adulterated silk produces a red brick colored ash; the more the adulteration the redder the ash.

In gros grain dress silk with white or colored edges you can employ and prove this test. Cut off the edge, no matter how cheap the gros grain or what color, it will burn like pure silk, while the black will burn like adulterated, as described.

It is a mistaken idea that cotton is being introduced into the manufacture of foreign silk dress goods. They use a much more dangerous material to the silk than cotton. This material, which is pure iron dissolved by nitric acid, producing a bath for the raw silk called nitrate of iron, which the raw silk is bathed in to give it "an apetite" to take on other minerals, gums, soap, etc. These adulterations are to make the silk heavy, close and attractive to the uncultivated eye.

One pound of raw silk can easily be swelled up by these foreign materials to weigh three or four pounds.

The mirror like finish on these adulterated black silks is produced by a bath of hot strong soap suds. Soap being produced largely from oil or fat, in this black so pleasing to the eye, soon becomes shiney by the rubbing or friction of wearing. The iron, gum and soap so weighs down the little silk employed that the garment cuts and is soon in tatters. Try the test before buying.

BAPTIST CONVENTION.

The Baptist convention of the North Pacific coast will convene for its third annual meeting with the Baptist church at Brownsville, Oregon, Thursday, October 23, 1879. A full delegation is desired. Churches contributing to the funds of the convention are allowed three delegates. Any one is an annual member by the payment of one dollar. Let churches appoint full delegations of those who will attend. Let every one who is interested in the work of the convention come as an annual member, if not appointed as a delegate. Let there be a large gathering of those who are interested in the work of the Lord on this great field.

Churches are especially requested to send contributions for printing the minutes of the annual meeting. A moderate contribution from the churches will amply provide for this expense, and if there should be an excess it will divert to the missionary fund.

Secretary of the Conference.

EUGENE, Sept. 25, 1879.

IS IT TRUE?

This is the age of shams—sham-built houses, sham furniture and carpets, sham pictures, sham jewelry, in short, sham in everything, even to razors. The Yankee is traditionally responsible for the invention of shams. His wooden nutmegs are historical. In the face of these facts it is not strange that the announcement of every new invention or scientific discovery is met with the question—Is it true? When the propelling power of steam was first discovered, not a few of our forefathers shook their heads and pronounced the steam engine an invention of Satan. Poor Harvey, the Bacon of medical science, what did he not suffer for discovering the circulation of the blood? Astrology [illegible] imposed upon the credulity of mankind [illegible] presenting itself in the garb of [illegible] challenged with "Halt! prove [illegible]" Thus it is in medicine to-day. So many [illegible] drugs have been sold under the name of medicines, that when a genuine remedy does appear, it is regarded with prejudice and distrust. Fortunately, as inventions and scientific theories so medicines are subject to the great law of nature and mind—the survival of the true. Every year that Dr. Pierce's Family Remedies are before the public they are more generally esteemed and their sales increase. His Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Purgative Pellets are the most popular of all remedies for diseases of the stomach, liver and blood, only because they have proved more effectual than any others. His Favorite Prescription, as a specific for the weaknesses and diseases peculiar to females, is also deservedly the most popular remedy of its class.

SATURDAY MORNING, OCT. 4, 1879.

REPRESENTATION OF JOURNALISM.

At the press dinner given in San Francisco to John Russell Young, the journalist who has been traveling with General Grant the leading journalists of San Francisco and the state were not present. Neither the Bulletin, Chronicle nor Call establishments was represented, nor was the Sacramento Record-Union. The Argonaut makes some ill-natured remarks upon their absence, to which the Record-Union replies that it might be well for those who take any interest in the subject to inquire why a so-called press dinner was distinguished by the absence of the real press. Since in almost every community there are "parasites and mimics" of journalism who assume to represent the press, the Record-Union's remarks meet a general case. It says:

> "One reason is that people who are not real journalists, but are to journalism what "magnetic healers" and "kings of pain" are to medicine, are very fond of taking upon themselves functions and responsibilities which do not belong to them. These hangers-on of the press undertake to give a dinner to somebody, and without consulting the real journalists they make all the arrangements and then cavalierly invite those who could alone have given any significance to the affair. Naturally enough the real journalists do not greatly care to encourage such performances, and so the pseudo "press dinner" turns out to be an exclusive festival after a new fashion—the people excluded being sometimes precisely those who would have been alone justified in offering such a compliment in behalf of journalism to the guest. To say, as the Argonaut does, that the character of the gathering was elevated by the absence of the real journalists of California, is to insult and calumniate the press of the state merely as a solace to the vanity and presumption of its parasites and mimics.

Coming down from a general statement to a particular application, it may be mentioned that there is a trifling weekly paper called the Courier issued at Lafayette in this state. It is a paper which neither is nor could be of use to anybody; it belongs to that class of sheets which are a nuisance to the community where published, being one of those scrub papers which are not called for by any popular demand, and give the public nothing for the money they exact, but owe their existence to a species of beggary as shameful to those who pursue it as it is annoying and disgusting to the public. It so happens that THE OREGONIAN has long been sending a daily to the Lafayette "wipe," and the other day in pruning its exchange list found it out and cut the thing off. It is in a terrible rage since, and seeks its revenge by denouncing THE OREGONIAN and praising the subordinate press of Portland. All this, however, is of no consequence; the object of the present paragraph being simply to express the fact, acknowledged by everybody, that such papers as the Courier, which prey upon a community and give nothing for the money they get through importunity and beggary, are a public nuisance with which people will in time learn to deal less leniently than now. Every concern of this kind that subsists as a mendicant is an abomination. No person willingly subscribes or pays for it. Though an utter travesty of journalism, every such concern puts on the airs of a newspaper, and spatters its puny wrath when its pretensions are not acknowledged. THE OREGONIAN could easily give away hundreds of copies to papers of the Courier's sort, but it costs money to publish a newspaper, and such is the demand for THE DAILY OREGONIAN in exchange that we are forced from time to time to revise our list and drop those papers which are of no use to us and not wanted. We exchange with all the papers which we want, or which are of sufficient use to us to justify an exchange. The very term exchange ought to imply some reciprocity. We should not speak so plainly about the matter were it not that now and then sheets like the one at Lafayette, which we do not want and which are no account to anybody, are in the habit of saying spiteful things because they do not get THE DAILY OREGONIAN in exchange. No real newspaper is published to be given away, postage paid; nor does any newspaper worthy the name give credit for subscriptions, dun, boring for the name and then boring for payment, while the victim knows that he has received no equivalent for the money extorted from him.

LATE VIEWS OF THE AGE OF THE WORLD.

[From the London Academy.]

Geologists, astronomers, and physicists have hitherto been baffled in their attempts to set up any satisfactory kind of chronometer which will approximately measure geological time, and thus give us some clew to the antiquity of our globe. It is therefore worth noting that Mr. Mellard Reade, of Liverpool, has lately contributed to the Royal Society a very suggestive paper, in which he endeavors to grapple with the question by employing the limestone rocks of the earth's crust as an index to geological time. Limestones have been in course of formation from the earliest known geological periods, but it would appear that the later found rocks are more calcareous than the earlier, and that there has been a gradually progressive increase of calcareous matter. The very extensive deposition of carbonate of lime over wide areas of the ocean bottom at the present day is sufficiently attested by the recent soundings of the Challenger. According to the author's estimate, the sedimentary crust of the earth is at least one mile in average actual thickness, of which probably one-tenth consists of calcareous matter. In seeking the origin of this calcareous matter, it is assumed that the primitive rocks of the original crust were of the nature of granite or basaltic rocks. By the disintegration of such rocks, calcareous and other sedimentary deposits have been formed. The amount of lime salts in water which drain districts made up of granite and basalt is found, by a comparison of analyses, to be on an average about [illegible] parts in 100,000 parts of water. It is further assumed that the exposed areas of igneous rocks, taking an average throughout geological time, will bear to the exposures of sedimentary rocks a ratio of about one to nine. From these and other data, Mr. Reade concludes that the elimination of the calcareous matter now found in all the sedimentary strata must have occupied at least 600,000,000 of years. This, therefore, represents the minimum age of the world. The author infers that the formation of the Laurentian, Cambrian and Silurian strata must have occupied about 200,000,000 of years; the old red sandstone, the carboniferous, and the permian systems, another 200,000,000; and all the other strata, the remaining 200,000,000. Mr. Reade is, therefore, led to believe that geological time has been enormously in excess of the limits urged by certain physicists, but it has been ample to allow for all the changes which, on the hypothesis of evolution, have occurred in the organic world.

THAT DREADFUL AFFLICTION, Epilepsy, Convulsions of Fits, soon becomes firmly fixed by habit, each attack increasing the liability to a return, and adding greatly to the difficulty of arresting the disorder. In the absence of proper treatment, a mere faintness with slight muscular twitchings, occurring at long intervals, in time become violent convulsions of great frequency, and the patient gradually sinks into imbecility. If relief is obtainable at all after the disease is thus firmly seated, it must be from some treatment which is permanent in its effects, and which not only has a tendency to suppress the attacks, but which will remove the morbid tendency to relapse. Dr Jayne's Alterative has happily been found to answer this purpose admirably; it gradually changes the morbid condition of the system, removes the cause of the disease, and when its use is continued for a sufficient length of time, produces a permanent cure. Let the afflicted try it. Sold by Hodge, Davis & Co., Portland.
